COMMENT:
A set of 2D working drawings has been produced that shows complex detailed visual information. This has been done by presenting a 1:10 cross section through the wall of the townhouse, then referencing this back to the elevations drawn at 1:100. However, to allow this design to achieve at a higher level, more drawings need to be produced to communicate further information about the design.

Conventions are used and are applied appropriately for this type of drawing.
