New Zealand Scholarship Te Reo Māori 2019

Standard 93003

Part A: Commentary

If candidates are not exposed to this type of language (that of Panekiretanga graduates and different tribal dialects), it is difficult to achieve Scholarship.

Part B: Report on performance standard

Candidates who were awarded Scholarship with Outstanding Performance commonly:

- confidently articulated their thoughts
- critically formulated an opinion
- integrated statements of ideas within a Māori world view
- demonstrated competency and confidence in reading comprehension
- transformed written knowledge into the production of a speech
- demonstrated fluency in te reo Māori in their speech, with quality language that flowed clearly and with precision
- supported their arguments with evidence.

Candidates who were awarded Scholarship commonly:

- interpreted responses within most sections of the examination
- showed more in-depth knowledge and understanding of the written text to articulate and critically analyse in their own words.

Other candidates

Candidates who were not awarded Scholarship commonly:

- did not comprehend fully the language of the written text
 - left sections of the examination blank
 - did not fulfil some aspects that were asked for – for example, writing more than 400 words in the essay, or describing the use of kīwaha in the oral component.
